SPEAKERSHIP FIGHT IS GROWING WARM

Mr. Cannon of Illinois in the Lead, With Mr. Dalzell of Pennsylvania a Close Second.

By J. J. DICKINSON.

The contest for the Speakership of the next House is shaping up rapidly. Representative Dalzell has come to Washington and announced his candidacy.

While no formal announcement of Mr. Cannon's desire for the office has been made, the Illinoisian is leading in the race, with Mr. Tawney of Minnesota managing his canvass in the Northwest.

Mr. Littlefield of Maine declared himself in the race a few days after Speaker Henderson withdrew, and the Maine man is known to have traversed the far West on a speaking tour in the campaign just closed chiefly for the purpose of testing the sentiment of Republican Representatives in that section.

It goes without saying that if Mr. Littlefield could enlist a considerable following in the West he would get the almost solid support of New England. However, as at this stage of the contest there appears to be no likelihood of his securing much support in the West, either by pledge or promise, it is generally thought that his candidacy is not a factor as yet, nor will it cut a large figure at any time.

Mr. Babcock of Wisconsin, who has successfully managed four Congress campaigns for his party, has entered the list for the Speakership prize, but his candidacy thus far has not aroused much serious consideration. If for no other reason there could be aroused opposition to him, his bill for the repeal of duties on the products of the steel trust, it is thought, is sufficient to deaden his candidacy at the very start.

The New York Candidates.

Whether or not either Mr. Sherman or Mr. Payne of New York is formally entered in the race is not known. It is believed, however, that if the ultra-protected interests that are supposed to be supporting Mr. Dalzell as against Mr. Cannon are pushing the Pennsylvania's candidacy mainly the view, as suggested in some well-informed circles, of forcing Mr. Cannon to place Mr. Dalzell at the head of the Ways and Means Committee, thereby overhauling Mr. Payne, the friends of the New Yorker will rally to his support and make the Cannon candidacy as unpleasant as possible to the end of checkmating the Dalzell move.

Mr. Hitt of Illinois also has some following for Speaker, and it is possible that this may be used to complicate the situation for Mr. Cannon in the sense that committee chairmanships will be the spoils demanded of Mr. Cannon in consideration of solid support from his home state.

Mr. Dalzell, it is understood, will see the President today and attempt to get an expression from him on the Speakership fight. It is not regarded as at all probable, however, that the President will permit himself to be drawn into the contest in any way.

Pledged to Mr. Cannon.

From Indiana there comes a report that the nine Republicans in that State's delegation already are pledged to Mr. Cannon in return for the chairmanship of the Appropriations Committee which Mr. Cannon, if elected, is to bestow upon Mr. Hemenway.

General Bingham, of Pennsylvania, stands next to Mr. Cannon on Appropriations, and if the rule of seniority is still to govern, Mr. Cannon should appoint the Pennsylvania to the chief place on the committee. If elected Speaker, however, over Mr. Dalzell, Mr. Cannon might conveniently blame General Bingham for the trouble caused by Mr. Dalzell's candidacy and thus have a reasonable excuse for putting Mr. Hemenway at the head of the Appropriations Committee.

It is thought that the Senate influence will be against the election of Mr. Cannon. The Illinoisian stands distinctly for the restoration of the House to its old-time independence and prestige as opposed to the dominance of the Senate in all important legislation. Few members of the House have more severely arraigned the Senate for its continued encroachments upon the powers and prerogatives of the popular branch than has Mr. Cannon, and it is believed this will weigh against him in his choice. On the other hand, Mr. Dalzell has been conspicuously identified with the movement in the House which has increased the Senate's power, so that as between him and Mr. Cannon the Senate unquestionably would view his candidacy with more favor.

Grosvenor Not in Race.

General Grosvenor has sent word from Ohio that he wants to get in the race, but his message has not yet attracted much attention.

As frequently stated by The Times, the contest eventually will be between Messrs. Cannon and Dalzell, with the chances greatly favoring the Illinoisian.

PEOPLE ARE SATISFIED WITH ADMINISTRATION

—Senator Foraker.

Election a Decisive Victory for Republicans.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY WEAK

Never Less Formidable Than It Is Today, Ohio Member of Upper House Says.

"It has been a decisive victory for the Republicans, demonstrating the satisfaction of the people with the present administration of affairs," was the comment of Senator Foraker of Ohio, this morning when asked his opinion of the election outcome.

"The democratic party, it seems to me," he continued, "was never less formidable than it is today. You can find nothing on which it is united. In the localities in which the democrats did make gains it was due not to national issues, but to disaffection within our own ranks."

"Our majority of about 100,000 in Ohio was brought about in part by the fact that the democrats were under the guidance of a man in whom none of the voters of either party have any confidence. Mr. Johnson lost votes for his party from the moment he began his campaign. I doubt whether he could be elected mayor of Cleveland; his President boom has faded away."

The coming session of Congress, Senator Foraker says, will be devoted largely to appropriation business. He looks for a little legislation beyond that. "I do not believe that the elections will have any influence in making out any special plan of legislation," he added. Ohio's vote will probably be divided between Cannon and Dalzell for Speaker.

DALZELL A CANDIDATE FOR THE SPEAKERSHIP

Says Pennsylvania Gets Too Little in the House.

NO IMPORTANT COMMITTEES

Will Have Largest Republican Delegation in Fifty-eighth Congress. Quay Will Support Him.

Chairman Dalzell, of Pennsylvania, has announced his candidacy for the Speakership of the House, "subject to the approval and support of the Pennsylvania delegation."

In support of his claims, he says: "Pennsylvania will have the largest Republican delegation in the Fifty-eighth Congress. The State maintains at all times, the supremacy of the Republican party, and gets nothing for it in return in the way of Federal officers. We have not a single important chairmanship in the House, with the exception of War Claims. The State has not been recognized since the civil war in the way of a Republican Speaker."

Senator Quay, who passed through Washington yesterday, made the statement that Pennsylvania would support Mr. Dalzell for Speaker.

STARVATION THREATENED IN PARTS OF PHILIPPINES

In a personal letter to the Secretary of War, Governor Taft gives more details of the rather alarming situation in the Philippines. In many parts of the archipelago starvation threatens the natives unless instant relief can be afforded them by this Government. It will probably be many years, Governor Taft says, before the present depression is overcome and affairs assume a normal status.

INDEPENDENT OPERATORS AGREE TO ARBITRATION

Wyoming and Lackawanna Owners Will Bind Themselves to Accept Awards.

Member Watkins, of the anthracite coal strike commission, has telegraphed Recorder Wright from Scranton that the independent operators of the Wyoming and Lackawanna region have informed him of an agreement among themselves to become parties to the arbitration and to bind themselves to accept the awards of the commission. The information was received with much gratification by Col. Wright.

Recorder Wright and General Wilson, members of the commission, and Assistant Recorder Moseley and Neill arrived in Washington last night. Judge Gray has gone to Wilmington. Mr. Clark has returned on a matter of business to Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Mr. Parker has gone to New York, and Bishop Spaulding and Mr. Watkins are in Scranton.

The commission will resume its meetings at Scranton on Friday, November 14, either at the county courthouse or at the Federal court building. The taking of testimony will begin at that time. Messrs. Wright, Neill and Moseley will leave Washington Tuesday or Wednesday to make all necessary arrangements in advance.

Investigation of Mines.

"Our inspection of the coal mines and the territory in general last week was without any mishaps whatsoever," said Recorder Wright today. "It was a week of strenuous work, but the members of the commission kept up their good physical condition. It was a successful and interesting experience, and we accomplished the purpose for which it was undertaken, which was to familiarize ourselves with the conditions of the mining industry."

The commission is in possession of the statement of the miners, and the operators have until tomorrow or Monday to present their statement. This will be given out as a copy of it has been served on Mr. Mitchell.

"We visited a mine a day," said Assistant Recorder Moseley, discussing his experiences in the coal field. "It was wonderful to see men of the age of General Wilson, Bishop Spaulding, Judge Gray, and others crawling up inclines of 35 degrees, into dark holes, indulging in the greatest physical exertion and standing like youngsters. None were turned back by any of the physical hardships involved."

Saw the Best and Worst.

"The object of the inspection was to see the best and worst mines and to study the most dangerous conditions under which men are required to work. It was necessary also in order that the commissioners might be able to understand the testimony which will be presented, because coal mining has not only its technicalities, but its vernacular as well. Our experiences were on this account alone of the utmost value."

Upon one other point Mr. Moseley made an interesting statement. "It is surprising," he said, "to observe the affection with which President Roosevelt is regarded by the coal miners. Socialists as well as Democrats are with him. They refer to him as 'our beloved President,' and their belief in his honesty is implicit. They almost defy him, even in the colonies composed entirely of foreigners."

Neither Mr. Moseley nor Recorder Wright would venture a surmise as to the length of time the investigation will consume.

Recorder Wright and General Wilson called at the White House today to see the President and report to him the progress of their investigations.

COURT SUSTAINS STATE ANTI-TRUST LAW

Nebraska Retail Lumber Dealers' Association Loses Its Suit. It Not Being Legally Incorporated.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 7.—The Nebraska supreme court has rendered a decision sustaining the constitutionality of the State anti-trust law, which had been attacked by the Nebraska Retail Lumber Dealers' Association as defendant in a suit for damages for forcing retail dealers out of the business.

The court holds the association to be unlawful, but dismisses the suit as to the association because it is not incorporated. The members of the association are held liable for damages resulting from their acts.

OLYMPHANT'S DENIAL.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—President R. M. Oliphant, of the Delaware and Hudson Company, authorizes an emphatic denial of the special from Scranton in reference to an alleged sale of the Delaware and Hudson properties.

TO PLAY BY ROYAL EDICT.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Jan Kubelik, the violin virtuoso, has been ordered to play at Sandringham on Sunday evening during the celebration of King Edward's birthday by the royal family.

UNITED STATES JUDGE JOHN H. BAKER RESIGNS

In Pursuance of an Agreement Between Senators Beveridge and Fairbanks of Indiana.

President Roosevelt today received the resignation of the United States District Judge John H. Baker, of Indiana. Judge Baker retires on account of age and by so doing carries out an agreement made at the time of his appointment about a year ago.

At that time the contest for the vacant judgeship was very fierce. Judge Baker was Senator Beveridge's candidate, and when he was named it was agreed that he should retire in a year to make room for Senator Fairbank's man.

Police Inspected.

The Tenth precinct police and the mounted command, were inspected this morning by Major Sylvester, Colonel Ross and Police Captains Heffner and Cross. This completes the annual ceremony. After the police parade, which takes place next Tuesday, the ratings given the police of the different precincts by the inspectors will be made public.

DEFENSE ESTABLISHES AN ALIBI FOR MOLINEUX

Professor Vutte Tells of Prisoner's Whereabouts on Day Poison Package Was Mailed.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—If yesterday was an important and sensational day in the trial of Roland B. Molineux, today is undoubtedly as momentous. Mrs. Anna C. Stephenson, an aged woman, in faltering tones, swore yesterday afternoon that she saw a man mail a package at the general postoffice on December 23, 1898. The address on the package read, "Harry Cornish, Knickerbocker—". That was all she could see of it.

Mrs. Stephenson swore that the defendant was not the man who mailed the package. The defense turned the witness over to the prosecution for cross-examination. If Mrs. Stephenson's testimony for the defense is unshaken and believed by the jury, Molineux is a free man.

Again Mrs. Stephenson.

It was a crowded court this morning when Prosecutor Osborne said: "Mrs. Stephenson, I would like to ask you a question."

The elderly lady who has introduced a new line of inquiry in this already intricate trial quietly took the stand. "Did any young man come to you in court yesterday and point out a gentleman, telling you that he was Cornish?" "No. I pointed Cornish out to my husband myself."

Mrs. Stephenson was excused and Harriet Vutte was called to the stand. He said he was a professor in Columbia College. He was asked to tell of his connection with Molineux on the day that the poison package was mailed.

"Molineux met me at the College of Physicians and Surgeons and we went to the New University grounds. We took lunch at the college tavern at 1 o'clock and returned to the college, where I introduced Molineux to Dr. Chandler. We visited all the buildings, taking up much time."

Vutte told in detail of all the buildings visited, after which he left the defendant about a quarter of five. He said he fixed the time because it was after sunset and he was able to catch a certain train on the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad. It will be recalled that the poison package was mailed about 4 o'clock at the general postoffice that same day.

Could Not Make Trip.

Columbia College is about seven miles from the postoffice. Vutte said that it had taken fifty minutes to an hour to go by the quickest line (elevated) from the college to the postoffice.

On cross-examination Vutte said that he fixed the date because it was the last Friday before the Christmas vacation. He was excused with only one question by Osborne.

A postoffice employee named Lockwood, called by the defense to show on what side of the postoffice the package was mailed, said that there was nothing on the package to show between what hours the package was mailed except that it was posted December 23, 1898.

Harry E. Howell, an employee of Hartigan's store in Newark, where the bottle holder was purchased, was called to the stand to deny Eugene Erhart's testimony that he had wrapped up the package. Howell said that wrapping up packages was not Erhart's duty. Witness said that no one in the store overheard Erhart say he had wrapped up the bottle holder until he testified in court.

MARYLAND SHOWS HER TRUE REPUBLICANISM

Comment of Senator McComas at White House.

Senator McComas of Maryland was one of the President's callers this morning, and was elated over the election. "Maryland has shown her true Republicanism," he said, "and the country has given evidence of its confidence in President Roosevelt. His personality was one of the great forces of the campaign."

"The coal strike issue caused a great reaction in favor of the Republican party. It might have proved menacing at the polls, but the President's masterly handling of a delicate situation won hearty support from thousands of voters not regularly identified with the party. They realized what discomfort he had averted for them, and they showed their approval of him and his party at the polls."

"The widespread victory of last Tuesday was due more directly to the 'farmer vote' than to the city vote. The farmers were more pleased with increased prices for cattle and foodstuffs than the city people were displeased with high prices for the necessities of life. From every point of view, State and national, the election was satisfactory to Maryland Republicans."

AUTONOMIST LEADER IN SPAIN ON TRIAL

Sabino Arana's Congratulatory Letter to Roosevelt on Cuban Independence Apparently Only Crime.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—A dispatch from Madrid says the trial of Sabino Arana, leader of the Autonomist party in the Basque provinces, charged with having sent a congratulatory cable message to President Roosevelt last spring on the granting of Cuban independence, began at Bilbao today.

The public prosecutor took the ground that Senator Arana's telegram to the President infringed the integrity and dignity of Spain, and he demanded that a sentence of eight years' imprisonment be imposed on the prisoner.

LADY HENRY SOMERSET CALLS AT WHITE HOUSE

Lady Henry Somerset of England was one of the President's callers at the White House offices this morning. Lady Somerset has been attending the convention of the Woman's Board of Missions.

WASHINGTON LAWYER ACCUSED BY MRS. HUGHES

Charges Edward S. Niles With Misappropriation.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Justice Hall, in special term of the supreme court, had before him for argument today the return on a writ of habeas corpus, issued recently by Justice Scott commanding Dr. Theodore H. Kellogg, who conducts a private asylum at Riverdale, in the borough of the Bronx, to produce in court today Mrs. Louise Beauchamp Hughes, eighty-three years old.

The writ was issued at the instance of counsel for David Michael Grassi, a relative of the late David M. Hughes, who was the husband of Mrs. Louise Beauchamp Hughes, who died in this city in 1884, leaving a large estate. Mr. Grassi set forth that Mrs. Hughes was unlawfully deprived of her liberty in Dr. Kellogg's asylum. Under her husband's will, Mrs. Hughes was to receive the income from his property during her life time. The property, valued at $25,000, is in the possession of the United States Trust Company, as trustee.

Mr. Grassi said that on October 21, 1902, he called at the "Doctor Kellogg House" and had an interview with Mrs. Hughes, "lasting a little over an hour and that Mrs. Hughes talked in a rational and connected manner and appeared to be in full possession of all her faculties."

He said she told him that she had been placed there by "a Mr. Niles," who had taken charge of all her property and was taking it away from her.

Then followed this allegation in the petition on which the writ was issued: "That one Edward S. Niles, herein after mentioned as a lawyer residing in Washington, D. C., who obtained by a series of unprofessional acts and devices, an ascendancy over Mrs. Hughes, and finally obtained her money from the various banks under various schemes and pretenses, and has obtained in all about $25,000, and has, as deponent is informed and believes, converted the whole thereof to his own use."

"In addition thereto he caused the whole of Mrs. Hughes' furniture and fittings of her residence at 2614 R Street northwest, Washington, to be sold and carried Mrs. Hughes first to Baltimore, then to New York city, and then to Cold Springs, Putnam county, N. Y. (where she was now a resident), and finally had her imprisoned at the above institution as an incompetent."

Order Given by Coroner After Hearing Testimony of Jules G. Van Brakle Regarding Statements of Cole.

Said Mrs. Was Nervous Over Matter and Expressed Wish That Victim Would Die and Relieve Him.

Cole's Testimony—Left Dennis House Early on Night of Crime and Did Not Return Until Next Morning.

Richard Cole, colored, who was employed by Mrs. Ada Gilbert Dennis for eight months prior to the mysterious assault in December last, which led to her death, October 22, was placed under arrest at noon today by order of Coroner Nevitt.

Cole's detention resulted from the testimony of Julius G. Van Brokile, who swore that Cole on numerous occasions in the past few months expressed fear of the return of Mrs. Dennis' reason, and said he was worried over the attentions paid him by the detectives.

The hard work of Detectives Hartigan and Horne and other officers through nearly a year has resulted in a partial clearing of the mystery. Information secured by Detective Hartigan in the last few days and the securing of Van Brokile as a witness afford hope that the perpetrator of the assault may be found and punished.

The investigation of the assault on Mrs. Dennis was resumed by Coroner Nevitt and the jury of inquest today. Van Brokile's testimony proved to be the sensation of the day although Cole himself was on the stand a long time.

Van Brokile lives at 218 E Street northwest. He was formerly proprietor of the Brunswick Hotel. He was examined in the presence of Cole early in the afternoon after several other witnesses had testified.

He said he has known Cole since February and Cole was at his hotel frequently. He talked two or three times about the Dennis case. Cole said about March 19: "I would be the happiest man if that woman were dead."

He said Cole said many times he was worried. Once Cole argued that the person who committed the assault was a man, and he did it for love. He denied that Cole said three blows were struck and the assailant was hidden under the sofa.

Van Brokile said that in June Cole told him that he was afraid to go to the hospital because Mrs. Dennis was regaining her mind and might say something to deprive him of his liberty. Cole said he was determined to keep silent. Cole told him at another time that he had seen Mrs. Dennis; her mind was clear. To avoid suspicion, Cole said he was going to visit her often. Cole told him that Mrs. Dennis was worth about $25,000; that he had handled her money and lived easy.

Cole Tells of His Movements. Cole's testimony immediately preceded that of Van Brokile. He said that he left the Dennis house about 7:25 Monday night on the night of the assault. He went to bed about 11:45.

He reached the Dennis house about five minutes before 7 the next morning, and noticed that the curtains in the workroom were down and that the window on the east side was up, and a light was burning in the hall. Mrs. Dennis' mother-in-law told him Ada had been almost killed and probably robbed. He assisted in holding Mrs. Dennis while the physicians were working with her. She was screaming, and was hard to hold.

He saw a small box, used to keep money in temporarily. He said he did not know where she kept her money, but had seen a large roll of money under a trunk upstairs. Mrs. Dennis once told him she sometimes put money there. This was two months before the assault. She deposited money in a bank at Seventh and C Streets. She usually paid her help on Saturday and paid other bills Monday.

Saw Mrs. Dennis at Hospital. Cole said he saw the top of the plane stool on the floor. He saw Mrs. Dennis twice after she was carried to the hospital.

Cole admitted he drank, but said he drank less after the assault than before, because he expected to be called at any time for examination. He said he was worried by the detectives and did not sleep quite so well as usual.

He denied admitting to Morris, the cook at the Hotel Brunswick, that he was getting nervous. In speaking of Julius Van Brokile, he said the hotel man was no friend of his, and he put no trust in him. He said he had no suspicion who committed the assault on Mrs. Dennis. He thought the assault was made by a woman. A blow with a piano stool by a man would have caused instant death. The plant being knocked over was another thing which made him think a woman committed the crime.

SAY MR. TOWNSEND HAS CHANCE FOR HIS LIFE

Had Recovered Consciousness This Morning.

"Mr. Townsend is slightly improved this morning. He has regained consciousness, and there is hope for his recovery."

This statement was made this morning at the residence of Richard H. Townsend, 2121 Massachusetts Avenue northwest.

While riding on the Tenleytown Road yesterday afternoon, between 4:30 and 5 o'clock, the husband of Mrs. Mary S. Scott Townsend fell heavily from his horse. He was unconscious when assistance reached him, and was found to be suffering from concussion of the brain, besides bruises about the face and body. Dr. William Penn Compton, Dr. Frank Hyatt, and Dr. Snyder remained at the Townsend residence all night.

Dr. Arthur Snyder, of Georgetown, who happened to be in the neighborhood where the accident occurred, gave the first medical attendance to Mr. Townsend, and rode with him to the Country Club house, where the Emergency Hospital ambulance was summoned to take the injured man to his home.

Mr. Townsend and his daughter, Miss Mathilde, left the family residence yesterday afternoon bound for the Country Club, which is located on the Loughboro road, north of Georgetown. On their way they passed the residence of Mrs. Phoebe Hearst and Miss Townsend decided to make a call while Mr. Townsend proceeded on his way to the club with the horses. She was standing on the porch of Mrs. Hearst's home and was watching her father as he started up the road. She saw that something was wrong.

Mr. Townsend's horse apparently became unmanageable, the saddle girth slipped and Mr. Townsend fell heavily to the ground, the horse walking off to one side. Miss Townsend immediately ran to her father's assistance and two colored men who had also witnessed the accident hurried to scene. A buggy was procured and Mr. Townsend was lifted into it. Dr. Arthur Snyder, a Georgetown physician and a member of the Country Club, happened to be coming along and it was he who gave the first medical attendance to the injured man. They proceeded to the club house where they summoned the Emergency Hospital ambulance.

The news of the accident was at once conveyed to Mrs. Townsend, at home, and she reached the Country Club in an automobile some time before the arrival of the ambulance. Mrs. Townsend was deeply shocked, but she and Miss Mathilde bore the dread news with great self-possession.

THROWAWAY WINS THE RICH LIVERPOOL CUP

First Ran Dead Heat With King's Courier.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 7.—The race for the Liverpool Cup of 1,200 sovereigns (100 sovereigns being in plate), one mile and three furlongs, resulted in a dead heat between Lord Fildesmere's King's Courier and F. Alexander's Throwaway. Lord Stanley's Pellission was third.

In the run-off, Throwaway beat King's Courier.

There was a head between King's Courier and Throwaway, the dead heat horses, and Pellission, who finished third. Scullion and the Fernandez Oublette colt made a dead heat for fourth place, a short head behind.

The betting was 4 to 1 against King's Courier, 33 to 1 against Throwaway and 100 to 6 against Pellission. Thirteen horses ran.

WAR ON IN SOUTHERN BASEBALL LEAGUE

Nashville and Memphis Associations at Variance and in Consequence There Will Be Two Leagues.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 7.—The conference held here yesterday and last night between President Carnes, of the Memphis Baseball Association, and President J. M. Palmer of the Nashville Baseball Association, representing the warring factions of the Southern League, resulted in the declaration of war to the knife.

There will be no compromise, and there will be two league teams in the Southern field next season with rival clubs in the following cities: Memphis, New Orleans, Nashville, Birmingham and Atlanta.

President Kavanaugh who is here now declares that the old Southern League will have the same circuit as last year, with the exception that Montgomery and Mobile will be added, making it a ten-club circuit.
